

March 7, 2016

Re: Child Care Access Means Parents in School Reauthorization Act (H.R. 4681)

Dear Congresswoman Duckworth and Congresswoman Clark:

As organizations committed to promoting the success of college students with dependent children, we are writing to express our support for legislation to reauthorize the Child Care Access Means Parents in Schools (CCAMPIS) program. The CCAMPIS program provides vital support for the participation and success of low-income parents in postsecondary education through the provision of campus-based child care.

Parents of dependent children make up approximately one-quarter (4.8 million) of the college students in the United States. Despite the large share of college students with children, however, campus-based child care has been declining in recent years, most dramatically at community colleges where the largest numbers of student parents are enrolled.

The CCAMPIS program is the ONLY federal program dedicated solely to providing child care assistance for students in postsecondary settings. It helps meet the high demand for low-cost child care, enabling student parents to persist in and complete postsecondary credentials, which are critical to their families' economic well-being.

For these reasons, we express support for the Child Care Access Means Parents in School Reauthorization Act (H.R. 4681).

Sincerely,

Student Parent Policy Working Group Members:

Access and Success, St. Catherine University
Center for Law and Social Policy (CLASP)
Keys to Degrees: Educating Two-Generations Together (National)
The National Center for Student Parent Programs at Endicott College
National Women's Law Center
Services for Students with Children at Portland State University
Student Parent HELP Center, University of Minnesota-TC
Women Employed
Young Invincibles